Why Ohio Has High Pest Activity

Ohio's climate creates perfect seasonal migration cycles:

Spring:

Ant colonies expand, termites swarm, wasps build nests.

Summer:

Mosquitoes, cockroaches, ants, spiders, and stinging insects peak.

Fall:

Rodents (mice and rats) move indoors through basements and attics.

Winter:

Mice, rats, cockroaches, and pantry pests dominate indoor spaces.

Older homes with basements and crawlspaces make Ohio particularly vulnerable to rodent and moisture-driven infestations.
